IMMORTALITY.

By JOSEPH JEFFERSON.

The New York Tribune of yesterday, through the couriesy of Mr. E. C. Benedict, printed the lines that follow, written by Joseph Jefferson the voteran actor, who has just died, on Immortality.

Read at this time the fable will seem to many persons like a veritable message from beyond the grave. Fancirul invention and quaint humor are the obvious characteristics of this unpretentious bit of verse, and it expresses a conviction that its author cherished, with steadfast faith, all his days. Mr. Benedict writes to the Tribune:

"One day last summer, when Mr. Jefferson and Mr. Cleveland were taking lunched on board the Oneida in Buzzard's Bay, the conversation dritted to the subject of a future life. Mr. Jefferson expressed himself as very grateful for having had more than his share of the joys of this life, and as being prepared to meet at any moment, the common fats of all. He said he had lately been 'scribbling some deggere' on the subject, and he recited his lines to us. I asked him for a copy of them, which, he said, he did not possess, but he promised to send me one. In February I reminded him of his promise, and received a signed copy of the verses, which he entitled immortality.' It seems as though these lines construct a beautiful bridge between faith and reason."

WO caterpillars crawling on a leaf, By some strange accident in contact came; Their conversation, passing all belief, Was that same argument, the very same,

That has been "proed and conned" from man to man, Yea, ever since this world began.

The ugly creatures, Deaf and dumb and blind, Devoid of features

That adorn mankind, Were vain enough, in dull and wordy strife, To speculate upon a future life. The first was optimistic, full of hope; The second, quite dyspeptic, seemed to mope. Said number one: "I am sure of our salvation." Said number two: "I am sure of our damnation; Our ugly forms alone would seal our fates And bar our entrance through the golden gates. Suppose that death should take us unawares, How could we climb the golden stairs? If maidens shun us as they pass us by, Would angels bid us welcome in the sky? I wonder what great crimes we have committed, That leave us so forlorn and so unpitied; Perhaps we've been ungrateful, unforgiving; 'Tis plain to me that life's not worth the living." "Come, come, cheer up," the jovial worm replied, "Let's take a look upon the other side; Suppose we cannot fly like moths or millers, Are we to blame for being caterpillars? Will that same God that doomed us crawl the earth, A prey to every bird that's given birth, Forgive our captor as he eats and sings, And damn poor us because we have not wings? If we can't skim the air like owl or bat, A worm will turn 'for a' that,' " They argued through the summer; autumn nigh, The ugly things composed themselves to die; And so to make their funeral quite complete, Each wrapped him in his little winding sheet, The tangled web encompassed them full soon, Each for his coffin made him a cocoon. All through the winter's chilling blast they lay, Dead to the world-aye, dead as human clay. Lo! spring comes forth with all her warmth and love; She brings sweet justice from the realms above; She breaks the chrysalls, she resurrects the dead; Two butterflies ascend, encircling her head. And so this emblem shall forever be A sign of immortality.

Conviction Follows Trial

When buying loose coffee or anything your grocer happens to have in his bin, how do you know what you are getting? Some queer stories about coffee that is sold in bulk, could be told, if the people who handle it (grocers), cared to speak out. Could any amount of mere talk have persuaded millions of housekeepers to use Lion Cottee, the leader of all package coffees for over a quarter of a century, if they had not found it superior to all other brands in Purity, Strength, Flavor and Uniformity?

This popular success of LION COFFEE can be due only to inherent merit. There is no stronger proof of merit than continued and increasing popularity. If the verdict of MILLIONS OF HOUSEKEEPERS does not convince you of the merits of LION COFFEE, it costs you but a trifle to buy a package.
